

The Washington Monthly is a new magazine with a new purpose—to help you understand our system of politics and government, where it breaks down, why it breaks down, and what can be done to make it work.

The American system is in trouble. It's not responding well enough or fast enough to our critical national problems.

The Washington Monthly intends to illumine that system with disciplined fact-finding and analysis that will help you discover what needs changing and what needs support. It also intends to enjoy the show.
